At first sight, it seems to be a bank of information, but in the end, it appears not to be of any worth. The terms "primary metabolites" and "secondary metabolites" have their own significance and bulkiness. Here, "primary metabolites" is meant for carbohydrates (no qualitative information) only. Similarly, "secondary metabolites" were treated. The title says, "Evaluation of Chemical Content.....", but where are these.....are they mineral ions? Further, "Phytochemical Composition....." where have you discussed composition? Moisture, protein, total fat, and ash—are these phytochemicals?
