The manuscript should be revised before being accepted for publication as follows:

- The title should be related to the sample studied because the researcher conducted a study on seeds.
- There are many sentences that are incomplete and many grammatical mistakes. You should check it carefully.
- There are many words that are misspelled, such as Folin-Ciocalteu.
- There was no method used to measure carbohydrates.
- Table 5 should be checked again; there is a point of error.
- Authors have shown the results of many experiments, but in the discussion section, it was not mentioned. Therefore, the results of each experiment should be discussed for the reader's understanding rather than just presenting the experimental results.
- The references section should be checked and edited.
