This is a very interesting and relevant study/article.

What is missing are the aim and objectives of this article.

- What is the nagging research problem that the authors needed to bring forth?
- Do the two stories advanced do justice to the real issues faced by people with disabilities and their needs?
- Some pertinent questions were forthcoming, but it would be more rewarding to have them responded to. (Please see remarks in the article).

Some comments and suggestions are noted on the main article hereby attached.

These minor adjustments can render the article publishable.
