We inform you that we have completed our evaluation. All corrections and suggestions were noted in the attached manuscript. The work may be published in the journal in question. I believe that because there is no statistical treatment of the data and it was only carried out in one analysis cycle, it could be formalized in the form of a technical note. However, with the suggestions and corrections placed in the body of the manuscript, the editor, together with the authors, will define whether it will be in the form of an article or in the format of a technical note.

Always at your complete disposal.
