Thanks to the respected authors for their brilliant effort in this research work.

As my point of view, the manuscript is written well and clear; however, we need more novelty. The introduction section said that other researchers conducted similar work from 2008, so we need more novelty and more novel ideas in this field.

The authors should write the axis titles in all of their figures (Figure 2).

The introduction section should be strengthened using new published works in this field, and the results should be compared properly.
