

Review of: "Unveiling the Hidden Harvest: A Study on the Influence of House Churches on New Testament Evangelism"

Cesar Augusto Galvez¹

¹ Universidad Peruana Union

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The introduction considered several viewpoints and provided an update of the current literature on the issue. The objectives of the study are well stated and clear.

The methods section clearly stated it is a qualitative design based on the published research and on original text analysis.

The results and discussion are well written. It analyzed some key texts in their original language, which is well done. The systematized presentation is well ordered and puts together almost all sources on the topic. The conclusions are natural according to the objectives. This article is relevant in a time where there is a need for a renewed evangelistic strategy.

My only observation is the author could include some sources in other languages. For instance, Francisco Quinteros has written "La Iglesia en tu casa" (The church at your home) 25 years ago or more. It is one of the first books in Spanish on the topic. It is worthy to review it.