This article is quite interesting in its technique of conveying information regarding research topics in the life of the Maluku people in general. My suggestion for the development of writing is more focused on culture that develops into social practice, the writer needs to reinforce that pela gandong is not just a cultural heritage but has the opportunity to be used as a smart practice in socio-economic life. The construction of values is clarified, not just in the educational segment but more important when students are out of school.
