The manuscript is good; however, the author is required to italicize the scientific names from family, genus, and species. Check the abstract section and remove the unit that has been duplicated. While starting a sentence, the scientific name should be written in full. The results and discussion section should be enriched to compare his findings with findings from other scholars who reported on Berchemia zeyheri or other plants having the same genus or family name as Berchemia zeyheri. Enriching the results and discussion will add more references; try to find more references within five years of their publication.
