The article covers a very important issue and provides insights into the long-term observations on PCDD/F emissions from a municipal solid waste incinerator. The article is well-structured and well-written. It introduces the topic very effectively, and the discussion of results is presented concisely. However, the article would benefit from additional graphical representations of the results, such as a diagram or figure depicting the sample collection points and their distances from the incinerator, as well as the changes in PCDD/F concentration over time.
