This research article is good, but there are things for the author to consider:

1. The author should rewrite their abstract in a more concise, scientific way. They should include the aims of the study as well as the main research problem, methodology, and contribution.
2. The author should systematically review the literature. They should search for all the relevant studies on this topic.
3. The author should talk about the research method they have adopted.
4. The research methodology should be clearly demonstrated.
5. The author should adopt the argumentative research method in proving the novelty of their study.
