

Review of: "The Evolution of Adult Learners' Roles: A Case Study of an English Teacher's Transformative Journey"

Sarah Alajlan

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The title is interesting, and the connection of transformational theory in the study is very good, but the theoretical framework of the study is weak and needs more work.

There are no references for the citations in the context. The discussion in the study is weak and also needs to be strengthened and linked to previous studies. The study is based on transformational theory, but during the discussion, it was not linked to Mezirow's studies.

In general, the study needs more work to be good.