

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Sinoatrial node dysfunction and deafness

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Sinoatrial node dysfunction and deafness. ORPHA:324321

Sinoatrial node dysfunction and deafness is a rare genetic disease characterized by congenital severe to profound deafness with no evidence of vestibular dysfunction, associated with sinoatrial node dysfunction with pronounced bradycardia and increased variability of heart rate at rest and episodic syncope that may be triggered by enhanced physical activity and stress.