The introductory aspect of this review article was well structured and allowed for easy comprehension. The consistency in referencing the work of other researchers regarding the pharmacological actions of Solanum nigrum demonstrates academic rigor and integrity. The sequence of information follows a logical progression, starting with the description of the study, followed by details of the methodology and findings. This logical flow facilitates understanding of the research presented.

The authors may need to maintain consistency in the reporting of figures, especially those adapted from other articles.

In general, I commend the dexterity and effort in generating a review of this interesting Chinese plant for the global scientific community, especially for medicinal plant researchers.
