This is a complete and well-written review; however, there is nothing new in this manuscript that can add to the current knowledge about hepatitis E infection. Since this is a complete manuscript regarding different aspects of HEV, its publication is recommended. Moreover, it would be better if the authors could add more information about HEV infection during pregnancy. The authors can use the following articles:

Epidemiology of Hepatitis E in Pregnant Women and Children in Iran: A General Overview

Prevalence, risk factors, and molecular evaluation of hepatitis E virus infection among pregnant women resident in the northern shores of the Persian Gulf, Iran
