I find the manuscript acceptable for publication. Prior suggestions to build a table for laboratory data were attended to, making the reading more accessible. It is well written and presents in a clear way the problem that the authors have identified and the results that justify their concern. The development of the text is friendly, and the conclusions, calling to actions that may benefit public health in the environment of the Sant Adria de Besos Municipal Solid Waste Incinerator, are supported by the data. It is also noteworthy that another message from this study is the recommendation that MSW incinerators require proper management as well as environmental surveillance in their neighbours to warrant that they do not produce any risk to the people living there.
