Although the subject of this study is quite nice, some of the topics I have written below should be completed.

The abstract should state the purpose, method, problem, and importance of the subject.

The purpose of an article should be clearly defined. It should state the motivations for this study, what the problem is, how it can be solved, the importance of the subject, and which method or methods were used for this study.

In the introduction, information about the flow of the study should be provided.

The article should have a conclusion and evaluation section.

In the conclusion, it should be evaluated how an article works, how it reaches a conclusion, and what the results obtained mean.

I wish you success.
