Your definition of “navigation” is so concrete, I suggest you should provide more details and also explain how navigation is done, in other words, to mention how this process is done. For example, the word navigation is associated with sea transport, but beyond belief, navigation is related to air transport as well: air navigation.

Certainly, a main concept could be stated in a short sentence; however, at a higher academic or technical level, authors and writers ought to expand certain thorough ideas in depth.

I recommend making a clear clarification about the use of the terminology “navigation” intended for the paper you are working on.
