It is a good article and could be published if developed:

1. The introduction can be developed and used new references in the field of collaborative and cooperative learning.
2. Explain the method more clearly.
3. The tables should be reduced, and the contents of the tables can be reported as text.
4. The connection of the results with the literature can be clarified in the discussion section, and suitable explanations can be provided.
5. The conclusion is a repetition of the abstract and results. It is necessary to write the conclusion in a different language and in an analytical form that can be used.
