I appreciate the opportunity to review this article of great quality, interest, and importance for comprehending in detail how the Work Ability Index (WAI) works, the most used questionnaire to self-measure one's working capacity. It was made a snapshot of the items of the WAI.

Paper very well written, clear, and consistent with the purpose and methodological options. The title is clear and consistent with the purpose and content of the paper.

I only have one remark regarding the Data Collection. How did the participants give their consent to participate in the study?

Quite comprehensive and well-designed results that meet the aim of the study.

The set of references is adequate to the theme and scientifically up to date.

Congratulations to the authors for the manuscript.
