

Review of: "Project Mausam: India's Cultural Strategy for the Indian Ocean"

Soham Biswas<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> National Institute of Technology, Silchar

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. Adequately explain the historical significance of the Indian Ocean and its relevance to current geopolitical dynamics in the introduction.
2. Can you elaborate on specific historical events or periods that illustrate the significance of the Indian Ocean in the introduction?
3. What are the strengths and weaknesses of the comparative analysis between India's and China's strategic initiatives in the region?
4. Provide a clear understanding of how Project Mausam aligns with or diverges from India's broader foreign policy objectives.
5. Are there any methodological limitations in the study that should be addressed? Suggest some limitations.
6. Can you provide specific examples or case studies that highlight the strengths and weaknesses of the comparative analysis between India's and China's strategic initiatives?
7. Could you suggest specific methodological limitations and how addressing them might improve the study's robustness?
8. What potential developments in the Indian Ocean region could impact the success of Project Mausam, and how does the article suggest these be monitored or addressed?
9. In what ways does the article contribute to our understanding of India's strategic and cultural initiatives in the Indian Ocean region?
10. In what ways does the article contribute to our understanding of India's strategic and cultural initiatives in the Indian Ocean region? Give a detailed conclusion.