Thank you for the interesting and important topic.

I think the manuscript needs to be easier for readers in terms of meaning, words, and philosophy .

Also, I think that the author wrote a lot about climate change and civilization, but at the same time, little was written about climate change and health. So either cancel the word "health" from the title or an obvious section about health should be written.

So, in conclusion, the manuscript needs to be less dense and more accessible so all levels of readers can understand it well. Also, the author needs to balance (in quantity of writing and sentences) among the three terms mentioned in the title (ethics, health, civilization).
